

Wednesday Evening: Building the Beloved Community

Wednesday, November 11 Make Me an Instrument of Peace

Session 1 Civil Discourse in Context, a multimedia presentation with Ranjit Matthews. How many of us have ever prayed, 'Lord make me an instrument of your peace,' then found ourselves in complex and polarized situations that made peace seem impossible?

No matter how far apart two sides are, there are effective strategies to bring people together, this course shows us how. Designed by The Episcopal Church, Make Me an Instrument is a 5-week series designed to help us bridge the divides that keep us from moving forward. Taught by a team of experts in civil discourse, come to one or all of the sessions. Make Me an Instrument is ideal for those who want to take dialogue between polarized people or parties seriously.

Wednesday, November 18 Make Me an Instrument of Peace

Session 2 Tenets for Civil Discourse a multimedia presentation with Shannon Kelly How many of us have ever prayed, 'Lord make me an instrument of your peace,' then found ourselves in complex and polarized situations that made peace seem impossible?

No matter how far apart two sides are, there are effective strategies to bring people together, this course shows us how. Designed by The Episcopal Church, Make Me an Instrument is a 5-week series designed to help us bridge the divides that keep us from moving forward. Taught by a team of experts in civil discourse, come to one or all of the sessions. Make Me an Instrument is ideal for those who want to take dialogue between polarized people or parties seriously.

Wednesday, November 28 No session 7pm Thanksgiving Service

Wednesday, December 2 Make Me an Instrument of Peace

Session 3 How many of us Values-Based Conversations a multimedia presentation with Alan Yarborough. How many of us have ever prayed, 'Lord make me an instrument of your peace,' then found ourselves in complex and polarized situations that made peace seem impossible?

No matter how far apart two sides are, there are effective strategies to bring people together, this course shows us how. Designed by The Episcopal Church, Make Me an Instrument is a 5-week series designed to help us bridge the divides that keep us from moving forward. Taught by a team of experts in civil discourse, come to one or all of the sessions. Make Me an Instrument is ideal for those who want to take dialogue between polarized people or parties seriously.

Wednesday, December 9 Make Me an Instrument of Peace

Session 4 The Complexities of Policy, a multimedia presentation with Rebecca Linder Blachy. How many of us have ever prayed, 'Lord make me an instrument of your peace,' then found ourselves in complex and polarized situations that made peace seem impossible?

No matter how far apart two sides are, there are effective strategies to bring people together, this course shows us how. Designed by The Episcopal Church, Make Me an Instrument is a 5-week series designed to help us bridge the divides that keep us from moving forward. Taught by a team of experts in civil discourse, come to one or all of the sessions. Make Me an Instrument is ideal for those who want to take dialogue between polarized people or parties seriously.

Wednesday, December 16 Make Me an Instrument of Peace

Session 5 Sacred Space for Debate, a multimedia presentation with Marcus Halley. How many of us have ever prayed, 'Lord make me an instrument of your peace,' then found ourselves in complex and polarized situations that made peace seem impossible?

No matter how far apart two sides are, there are effective strategies to bring people together, this course shows us how. Designed by The Episcopal Church,

Make Me an Instrument is a 5-week series designed to help us bridge the divides that keep us from moving forward. Taught by a team of experts in civil discourse, come to one or all of the sessions. Make Me an Instrument is ideal for those who want to take dialogue between polarized people or parties seriously.